PREFACE

The fourth Edition of the Guide follows the plan of the previous editions. The work has been thoroughly revised. Only those titles have been allowed to remain which have been verified by the publishers or have been found in the late lists of current periodicals or have been personally examined by the compiler. The present edition contains more than 12,000 titles, an increase of practically twenty-five per cent over the third edition of 1914. There have been numerous changes in periodical publishing during and since the War. Many new journals were begun by departments of Federal and State governments and other organizations doing war work. These titles have been allowed to stand for historical record, although the periodicals ceased when the departments and organizations retired from war activities. The uncertainty and the frequent changing and shifting of prices has made accuracy at any specified time difficult. Many changes in prices and in titles of periodicals have occurred while the printing of the Guide has been in process.

An additional feature of Part II is the complete list of trade Journals or house organs, comprising several hundred titles.

In the preparation of this edition of the Guide I am greatly indebted to Mr. B. A. Finney, Reference Librarian Emeritus, University of Michigan, who has corrected copy and read proof for me while I was representing the American Library Association in Paris.

HENRY O. SEVERANCE,
Librarian, University of Missouri.

Columbia, Mo., December, 1920.
